What is Take me Home

Take Me Home™ is a database developed by the Pensacola Police Department for people who may need special assistance if they are alone or in times of emergency. This kind of assistance may be required if the person is unable to speak or properly identify themselves, or if they become disoriented or act in a manner that could be misinterpreted by first responders. The system includes a current digital picture, demographic information and caregiver contacts. If a police officer encounters a person in the Take Me Home system, the officer can query the Take Me Home system, searching by name or by the person's physical description. Once the individual's Take Me Home record has been located, the officer has ability to appropriately assist the person in need.

How it works

This information is entered into a database that can be accessed in cruisers or back at the station. If officers find someone who cannot communicate where he or she lives, they can search the database by description and return the person to their loved ones. The system also works in reverse - if a loved one goes missing, their picture and description is immediately available.

WHO IT HELPS

Loved ones with:

- Autism
- Alzheimer's
- Dementia
- PTSD
- Down Syndrome
- Traumatic Brain Injury
- Other cognitive disabilities

Any disability that makes communicating with First Responders difficult to help your loved one find their way home.
